The Corridor Of Uncertainty: How Cricket Mended A Torn Nation

Synopsis

In 1979, Afghanistan erupted into one of the most brutal civil wars ever. The fighting lasted almost a decade, throwing the country into a period of political instability, harsh leadership, and extreme danger. Hundreds of thousands of civilians died, and millions relocated to refugee camps. The rest of the world began to believe that violence would always define Afghans. However, deep in the refugee camps of Pakistan, displaced native Afghan children had a dream to unite their country once again with peace. The solution was disguised in the game of cricket. These children began to learn cricket, and persevered against the danger, criticism, and unrest to create the first-ever Afghan national cricket team. With unrivaled access to the team and players during the 2015 Cricket World Cup, Nihar Suthar tells the story of their inspiring journey to change Afghanistan in one of the most under-told, heart-warming sports stories of all time.

Customer Reviews

"I've read cricket books from WG Grace to Sachin Tendulkar, but nothing has been more inspiring than Suthar's The Corridor of Uncertainty, and the story of how cricket helped mend a torn nation. Despite the Taliban, deaths, bombs and poverty, and even though Osama bin Laden is mentioned more than Bradman, it's an uplifting story." --Joseph Romanos, New Zealand Journalist and Author
"This most heart-warming of stories should be read by not just cricket fans but anyone who believes in good over evil and a triumph for perseverance and determination. Because of the tremendous hardships encountered along the way, it would be wrong to describe it as a fairy tale but, if anyone who reads this sheds a tear, they won't be alone."

"This is an inspirational story of young men from refugee camps who form the first ever Afghan national cricket team. Nihar Suthar endured threats to get the incredible tale you now hold in your hands." --James Bradley, New York Times Best Selling Author, "Flags of Our Fathers, The China Mirage" "A superb book and one that deserves to be widely read. There is absolutely no reason why it would not appeal to every single one of the millions of readers who made "The Kite Runner" a best seller. Has the potential to be the biggest selling book about the game of cricket ever written. The most thought provoking book on any subject I have read in years." --CricketWeb.net "Remarkable. A triumph over adversity and of the human spirit, an inspirational story that should be on everyone's list of must reads. A multi-dimensional book. An extraordinary read and one that I would heartily recommend to any cricket fan." --PeakFan's Derbyshire Cricket Blog

Nihar Suthar is an award-winning writer, covering inspirational stories around the world. He strives to publish works that break the status quo. Suthar was born in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, and graduated from Cornell University in January 2016.

I cannot imagine that anyone will ever find a book that captures the essence of passion like The Corridor of Uncertainty, and it is absolutely a "must read". In their sheer desire to have their homeland perceived as something other than the violence and torture that had for so long defined their country, deep within the refugee camps of Pakistan, displaced Afghan children had a dream to unite their native land once again with peace. Driven by a passion that few of us can relate to, and undeterred by the extreme hardships and the ever present risk of torture and violence; these children foraged ahead to form the first ever Afghan national cricket team. The book also encompasses a note of familiarity as it takes us back to the tragic events and aftermath of 9/11, and it also reveals the story of how an American military officer stationed in Afghanistan shared these children's passion for the game, and was very instrumental in facilitating their cause. This is a story that needed to be told, and kudos to Nihar for having the courage to do so.

Nihar Suthar is an award-winning writer, covering inspirational stories around the world. He strives to publish works that break the status quo. Suthar was born in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, and graduated from Cornell University in January 2016. His bio for this initial book WIN NO MATTER WHAT: A GUIDE TO HYPING UP YOUR LIFE shares his background. Nihar Suthar is the founder of Hype Up Your Day. His company is the source of motivation and joy to over 100,000 people. Suthar was born and raised in Lewistown, Pennsylvania. Currently, he is a college student who inspires individuals, families, and corporations around the world to dream big and do even bigger. Now in his new book THE CORRIDOR OF UNCERTAINTY: HOW CRICKET MENDED A TORN NATION he ventures into world affairs with a generous bow to history and deeds about which few of us know. Nihar opens his book with a 1990 one-day international Cricket game between the English team and the West Indies team in Jamaica. For those of us who know little about cricket it may be slow reading until the last gripping moment that supplies the title for this book. He then wisely takes us through the struggles in Afghanistan and that he offers in a plot summary. In 1979, Afghanistan erupted into one of the most brutal civil wars ever. Leading up to the 2015 Cricket World Cup triumph in winning against Bangladesh. Perhaps the most meaningful lesson the Afghan cricketers taught the rest of the world was to look beyond stereotypes. Not all Afghans stood for violence. Beyond the horizon, there was a surging group of people who stood for something greater: cricket. Just then, the announcer exclaimed over the loudspeaker, "Here come the Afghan and Bangladeshi cricket teams!" The Afghan cricketers looked at each other and yelled, "Here we are," as to having overcome the corridor of uncertainty! This book is profoundly moving and though Nihar bows to those of us who know little about the game (he includes an Appendix with Rules of the game and some very fine photographs to re-cap his story), the message of the title is clear. A very fine book from a very fine writer and caring human being. Vah Vah. Grady Harp, June 16

I really enjoyed reading this book from beginning to end as it really captured my interest. I strongly suggest this book as it is very well written and is very informative for anyone who likes to read books while traveling or during their free time.
