The Four Dimensions Of Extraordinary Leadership: The Power Of Leading From Your Heart, Soul, Mind, And Strength

Synopsis

You have the capacity to become an extraordinary leader if you are willing to embrace a deeper definition of leadership and take action to apply it. In The 4 Dimensions of Extraordinary Leadership, Jenni Catron, executive church leader and author of Clout, reveals the secrets to standout leadership found in the Great Commandment: “Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind and with all your strength.” Weaving a winsome narrative filled with inspiring real-life stories, hard-won wisdom, and practical applications, Catron unpacks four essential aspects of growing more influential: your heart for relational leadership, your soul for spiritual leadership, your mind for managerial leadership, and your strength for visionary leadership. Leadership isn’t easy, but it is possible to move from ordinary to extraordinary. Jenni Catron shows the way.

Jenni Catron is part of the central leadership team at Menlo Park Presbyterian Church in Menlo Park, California. She served for nine years as the executive director of Cross Point Church in Nashville, Tennessee, where she led the staff and oversaw the ministry of its five campuses. Prior to joining Cross Point, she worked as an Artist Development Director in the Christian music industry for nine years. She lives in Menlo Park, California.

These are the 4 dimensions of extraordinary leadership, based on the greatest commandment known as the Shema from the Torah or Old Testament. Author Jenni Catron explains how leaders need to use all four of these principles to be an effective leader. Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind and with all your strength. -Mark 12:30 Learn the difference between: Heart (Relational leadership) Soul (Spiritual Leadership) Mind (Managerial Leadership) Strength (Visionary Leadership) Extraordinary Leadership...and take an assessment to learn which of these is your strength and how to intentionally be better in the other areas. After the assessment I learned I am a strong relational leader. Ask my friend, Stacie or Rachael...relational is where I feel most comfortable. Mind...is my weakness. I have very little experience in actual managerial leadership. At the end of each chapter are reflections perfect for assessing how to incorporate the techniques and tools given in the chapter and how to incorporate them into your workplace or position of leadership. This book details what it means to lead with all your heart, soul, mind and strength. You discover the practical way the Bible lays out the plan for Christ-like leadership. I found it compelling and insightful and I'm reading the book for the second time. Jenni writes, "If you can take responsibility early for your leadership development, you'll be less likely to flounder around, wasting valuable time wallowing in unmet expectations of the leaders around you." Read this book and you'll be taking the right step in developing your leadership.

Jenni Catron breaks leadership down into 4 elements: heart, soul, mind, and strength; and helps you to discover which area is your strongest and how to lead well using all 4.

One of the best, if not the best, Christian-based leadership books I have read. Amazing how such a simple scripture can hold such powerful principles for leadership. Even though I am not currently in a leadership position, the points in this book will help me work towards my career and leadership goals. I believe many of the dimensions of leadership discussed can be applied to everyone regardless of position and applicable in the private and public sector.

Are you looking for ways to grow your leadership skills or challenge yourself to lead in new directions? This book is a great read for you. Jenni provides a mindful and detailed breakdown of the four areas every leader must consider to be effective. She will challenge you to lead through vulnerability and to build real meaningful relationships with those you influence. Catron also provides valuable tools to help you strengthen areas of weakness. This book is an excellent resource that reminds us extraordinary leadership is not bound by gender, spirituality, or age.

Jenni Catron has done such an outstanding job with this book to integrate the basics of biblical theology behind good leadership with practical application from her experience and learnings. This book has value for self leadership, but reaches deep as a tool for coaching, mentoring and discipling the next generation of leaders. Jenni's diverse experience and ability to deliver transferable concepts makes this book an essential for developing staff and volunteers in any organization.

If you want to learn effective ways to lead from the best parts of your whole self, you need to own this book! Jenni Catron unveils important strategies in learning how to lead from your heart, soul, mind, and strength. The chapter on "leading from within," was particularly helpful to me as a leader. We must lead ourselves well in order to lead others in a meaningful way. Don't miss out on a great source for leadership development!

Excellent book. I shared this with my adult daughter who is beginning a new management/leadership role and she found it to be very helpful.
