Customer Reviews

PreSçâ –â œEveryone's favorite pigeon is back with two titles for the board-book crowd. In Feelings, the Bus Driver tries to get Pigeon to make a happy face. Pigeon, of course, has other ideas. Words such as happy, sad, and angry stand out in bold colors. Things That Go! presents popular modes of transportation such as a bus, a train, an airplaneÃçâ –Â|and a hot dog (A hot dog can &#x98;GO' right into my belly!) while Pigeon provides colorful commentary. Both books use the same style and color scheme found in the original picture books, with clean bright pages and simple thick-lined illustrations. Pigeon's fans will be excited to see this wacky bird and his friends again.Ãçâ –â œJulie Roach, Watertown Free Public Library, MA Copyright Ã Å© Reed Business Information, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. We love reading this book to our son! Without fail, my son brings Mo Willem's book at least 3x a week! We have all his collection. It's fun and captures the attention of our toddler.

This is true, you are getting basically a short story of the pigeon books. This is meant to be a board book and I believe it's the perfect length for young toddlers. My son loves this book and the different emotions the bird goes through, in some ways he acts like a toddler. I think this book is great for children who are still learning or have learned the difference between being Happy, Sad, and angry. My almost two year old cracks up with giggles when I include those emotions into the text of the book. Definitely a must buy for your young ones.

A simpler book than some of Mo Willems'. However, we are HUGE fans of his!

All of Mo Willems' books are wonderful.

cute book. we love the entire pigeon series

Love it, but price a little bit high

My three year old loves the Pigeon series. They are quite funny. A must read for young toddlers.

This is the small size book!
