Jennifer Frantz lives in New York City. Leonard Stern and Roger Price created Mad Libs ? in the 1950s and the series has been a favorite among kids of all ages ever since. Although Roger Price passed away in 1990, Leonard Stern keeps the tradition alive by writing new Mad Libs ? all the time. Roger Price and Leonard Stern are both well known for their comedy writing. In the 1950s Roger Price created and developed cartoons called Doodles, which were turned into a television show. Before that Price worked with Bob Hope on a newspaper humor column, and he even appeared on Broadway in Tickets, Please! Leonard Stern has an equally colorful and varied history. Before co-founding Price Stern Sloan with Roger Price (Sloan came later), Stern was a successful television writer. In addition to his creative involvement with over twenty television series and over ten motion pictures, Stern worked with Jackie Gleason in New York writing the Honeymooners. He also wrote for the Phil Silvers Show, The Steve Allen Show, and wrote and produced the original Get Smart television series. Recently, Stern published A Martian Wouldn't Say That, which compiled weird and wacky memos written by people in the entertainment industry. Currently, Stern serves as a senior vice president of Price Stern Sloan, where he still writes those hilarious Mad Libs. © 2000 by Penguin Putnam Books for Young Readers. All rights reserved.

My grand kids love animals so these were a lot of fun to do with them as, once they understood the concept, they got very creative in their answers. The game is also good at helping them learn and reinforce the various parts of speech.

My grandson loves these stories he makes himself. He is home-schooled and his Mom uses these books to get him to practice writing. Often, he is unfamiliar with how a word is written, so the follow-up story surprises and delights him. Great learning tool, and a whole lot of fun for both teacher and the student.

As a mom and a school counselor I look for kid activities with meaning....but are fun and will hold the interest of my kids. These will do this. Also great for road trips or plane rides as well. Good family fun!

This was our first experience with Mad Libs Junior, and it did not disappoint! We all laughed our heads off on a 5-hour car trip with our grandchildren (teens to toddlers)! Great, good, family fun!

These are adorable and made a perfect stocking stuffer for a 7 yo reluctant writer. Once he had these, he was filling them in for days. Great way to get the kid to want to write and spell stuff.

Mad Libs are a useful educational tool and this book was stimulating and engaging, but perhaps not challenging enough. Our 7 year-old started to lose interest as she churned through each page and she remarked it wasn't all that challenging. Still, I am pleased to see her engaged and motivated to keep working through something that's more stimulating than passive reading.

You can't beat Mad Libs for teaching about nouns, verbs, and the like. Keeps kids interested and using their creativity along with teaching them. Great fun in our house!
