Customer Reviews

From working with preschoolers, I can verify that many children do not have concepts about print which we might take for granted. Many kindergarten-bound children do not know that text is written horizontally from left to right, and in books which are read by turning one page at a time. However, I wish to caution the customer against the deceptive marketing. First, she sells you this quote-book-unquote (it's only 32 pages). Then she tells you that they have more to say in another publication. Then, in the appendix, she gives you checklists which you are supposed to run on each child, but which necessitate the purchase of her three picture books. If she would wrap up all of these publications in one package and charge one lump sum, I wouldn't have any objection.

The purchase meet my expectations. The was as described.

I found this very helpful. I like that it really focuses on one section of the observation survey. I will buy other O.S. sections now!
